

Consequences of meticillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) acquisition

Patient experiences and interactions in health care and daily life

Akademisk avhandling

för avläggande av medicine doktorsexamen vid Sahlgrenska

Akademin vid Göteborgs Universitet.

Avhandlingen kommer att offentligen försvaras den 26 november 2014

kl 13.00 i hörsal Arvid Carlsson Academicum, Medicinargatan 3,

Sahlgrenska Akademin,

av Eva Skyman

Fakultetsopponent

Professor Christina Lindholm,

Sophiahemmet Högskola, Stockholm

Avhandlingen baseras på följande delarbeten

- I Skyman E, Thunberg Sjöström H and Hellström L. Patients' experiences of being infected with MRSA at a hospital and subsequently source isolated. Scandinavian Journal of Caring Sciences, 2010; 24, 101-107.
- II Skyman E, Bergbom I, Lindahl B, Larsson L, Lindqvist A, Thunberg Sjöström H, Åhrén C. Notification card to alert for methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus is stigmatizing from the patient's point of view. Scandinavian Journal of Infectious diseases, 2014; 46(6):440-446.
- III Skyman E, Lindahl B, Bergbom I, Thunberg Sjöström H, Åhrén C. Being met as marked – patients' experiences of being infected with community-acquired MRSA. (2014) Submitted.

UNIVERSITY OF GOTHENBURG